Brand Campaign Concept

Brand Campaign Concept

In The Making

Our campaign concept celebrates how Winchester helps students bring who they are into what they do. It speaks to 'making' in both the literal and figurative sense - not just a metaphor, but something tangible built into our curriculum. Within it, we look to foster a culture of action: trying, testing, failing forward, and learning by doing.

At Winchester, no one arrives finished.
This is where drafts are welcome.
Where ideas stretch, shift, and sharpen.
Where learning is lived, not just taught.

Small groups. Big questions.
Real work. Real talk.
People who see you – and back you.

We don't rush to polish.
We stay in the sketch.
We dig into the doing.
This is where the rough cut counts.
Where the mess matters.

You're not a product at Winchester.
You're in the making.

Creative Pillars

Our creative pillars are designed to guide the look, feel, and storytelling of our campaign. They give creative direction to ensure every piece of content and design consistently supports the same overarching narrative. Use these as a framework for creative development.

Celebrate one of a kinds

Reflect the individuality of our community. Never generic, never templated. Champion quirks, dreams, edges and ambitions. Show the texture of who we are by knowing who we're talking about.

Make place matter

Make Winchester visible and vital. Show how our size, setting, and city shape who we are and how we learn. Our place isn't a backdrop, it's part of our story. Whether it's cobbled streets, café corners, or creative studios, this is a University grounded in where it is.

Chase the moment

Don't wait for the polished result. Capture work in motion: the in-between moments, the exploration, the doing. Let the audience feel the energy of learning. Showcase how ideas take shape, shift, and evolve. Blur the line between student and professional.

Brand Campaign World

Here is a snapshot of our brand campaign world.

Our Fixed Assets must remain consistent across all our campaign materials. Our Flexible Assets have more freedom and demonstrate our brand in action. All this is underpinned by our core Strategy “In The Making”.

Within these guidelines we will dive into each of these areas more comprehensively.

Marketing Messages

Lead Messages

These are our hero lines, to be used across audiences and formats.

They capture the heart of the In the Making platform. They're short, confident and memorable, designed to work at the top of the campaign and across high-visibility channels. Tonally, they balance inspiration with accessibility — celebrating growth, process and possibility while keeping the voice human and direct. Each line can stand alone but should be paired with a clear CTA.

Find magic in the making

In the room. In the moment. In the making.

A place for learning, and for living.

Small classes, big thinking.

The best version of you isn't found – it's made.

In progress is powerful

Messaging Sub-Pillars

These are our supporting themes that provide us with specific, actionable messaging areas. They serve as flexible tools and can be emphasised depending on the scenario, format, or audience, and don't all need to be used together.

Professional/Outcome-focused/Course-level Confident, future-facing lines that flip clichés about careers and employability. Use rhythm, contrast and light wit to make "professional" feel exciting, not dry.	Not just ready for what's next. Ready to define it. Your CV just got interesting	What you start here has an echo From work-ready to world-ready	Proof that curiosity works Careers aren't found – they're made
Student-led learning/Lifestyle Playful, human, and a little messy — reflecting process, growth, and personality. Use juxtapositions to capture student life in progress.	For deadlines and daydreams A place for ideas that haven't picked a lane yet	Ideas in process. People too. This is you in the making	For smudged edges and sharp ideas You're not a product. You're a process.
Place/Location Rooted in Winchester's character. Warm, witty, and specific — often using surprising contrasts and sensory details to show a lived-in, layered place.	From campus to Cathedral in 3 songs flat Give your ideas space to breathe	This city's got layers. Just like you. Small city. Huge line-up.	New ideas can be shaped between cathedral bells and charity shops Crafted in cafés. Drafted in the Downs.

Fixed Assets

Our Logo

Our Primary logo is a simplified version of the Heritage logo, available in both banner and square formats. This logo should be used in most situations as the correct and preferred choice.

The Primary logo should be used on:

- Marketing communications for all students and their influencers
- Websites
- Co-branded material
- Wayfinding and signage

Banner Logo

Square Logo

Logo Colour

Our logo may be used in Black or White. Use the elements in your piece of communication to determine the colour of your logo for maximum contrast and clarity.

If your background is light, you should be using a Black logo. If your background is dark, you should be using a White logo.

The logo must only be used in white or black, never in the core colour palette.

Logo Usage

Clear Space
A clear space zone is set at the height of the 'W' in 'Winchester'. It is essential to maintain this safe area at all times.

Minimum Size
A minimum rule has been set in order to maintain consistency and legibility across printed documents.

Minimum sizes and exclusion zones aid more than just brand recognition, they ensure our documents are clearly identifiable for all users.

Remember these rules are a base minimum, not a target. If we can increase size and clear space without impacting the design this should be actioned wherever possible.

Clear Space – Banner Logo

Clear Space – Square Logo

Minimum Size – Banner Logo

Minimum Size – Square Logo

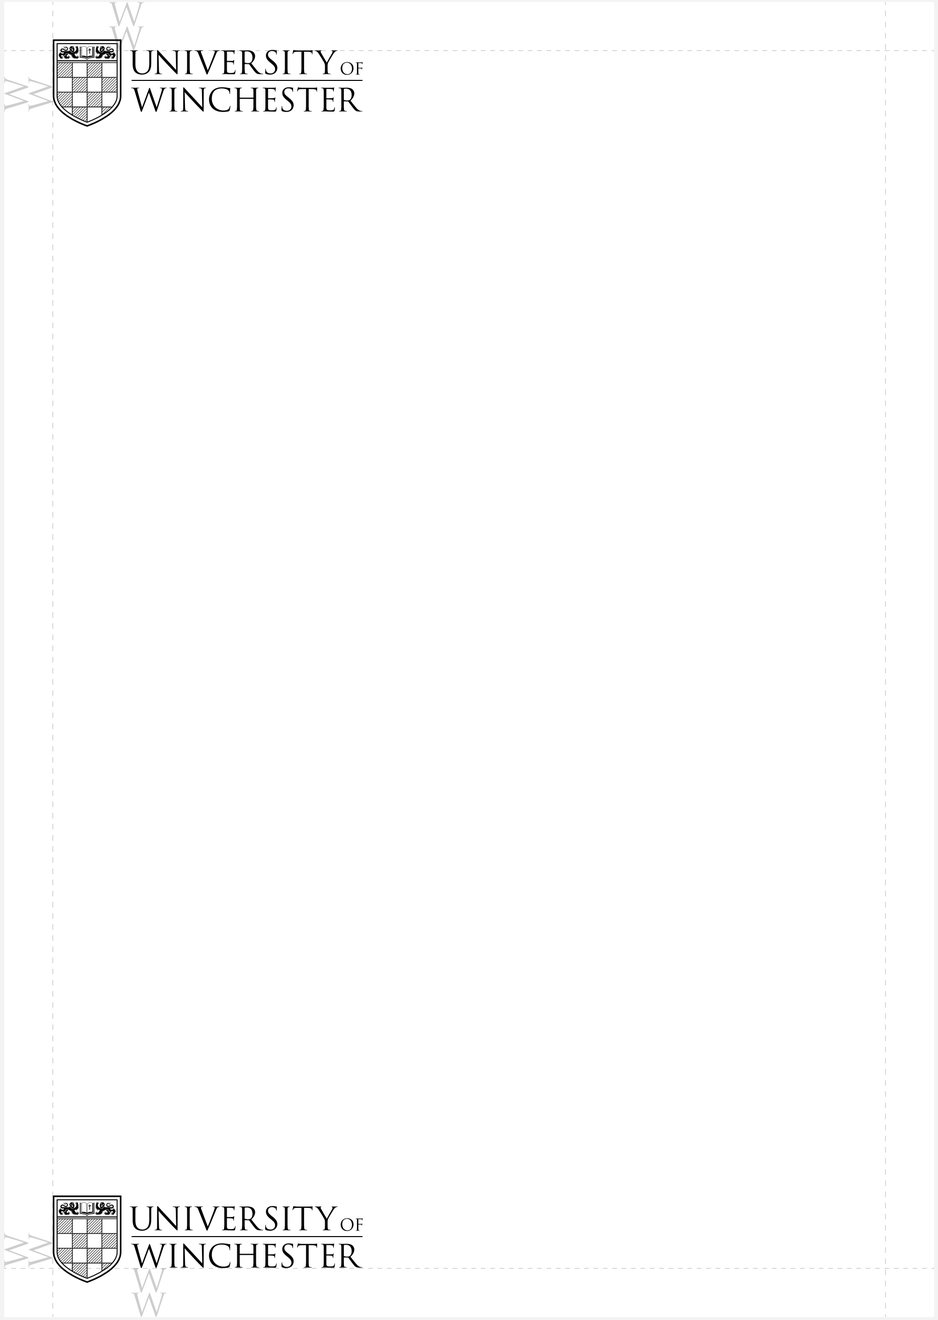

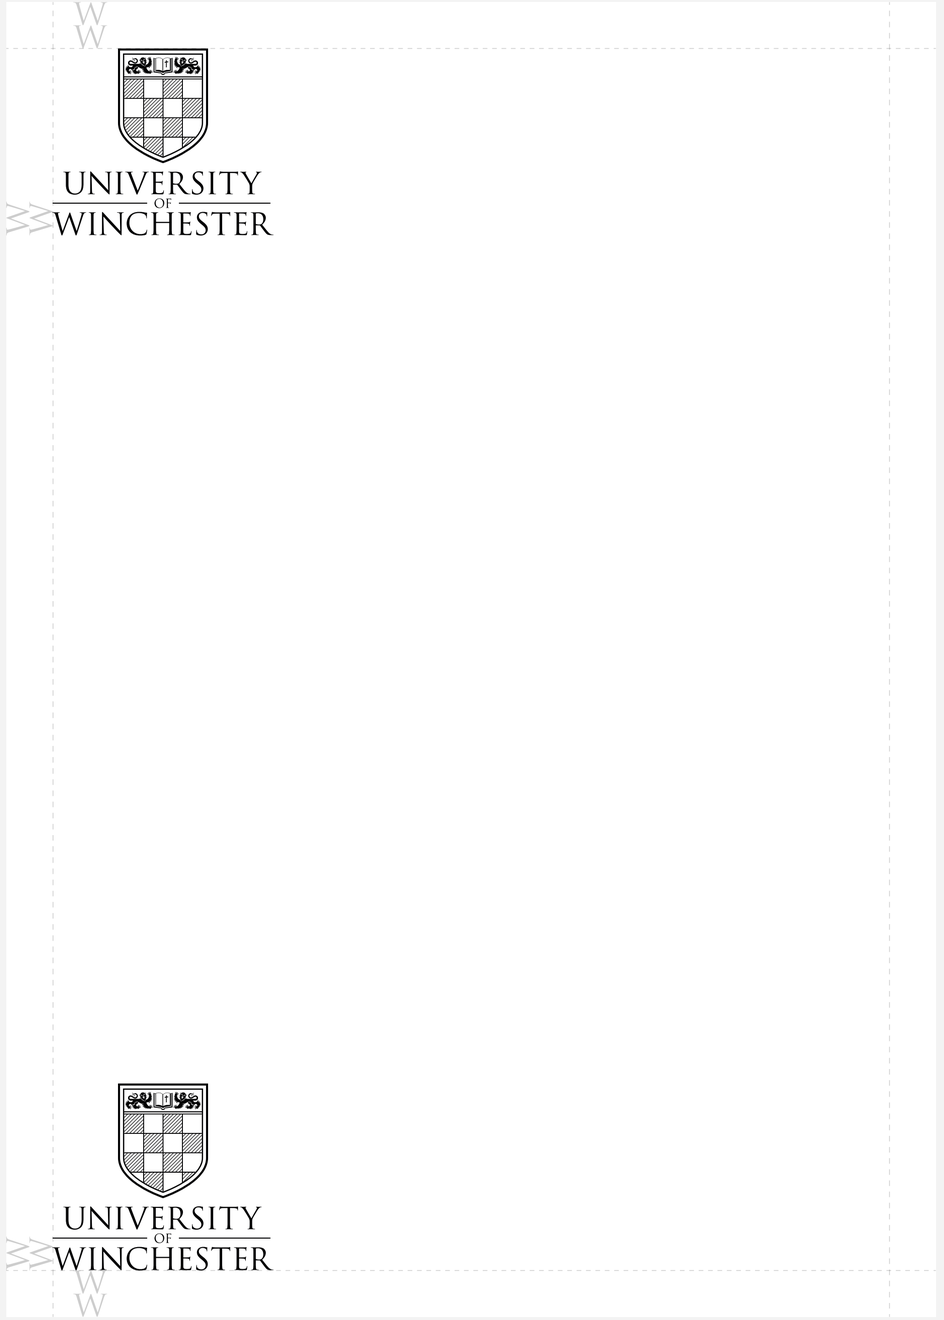

Logo Alignment & Positioning

Our logo naturally lends itself well to left-alignment and so placement on the left-hand side is preferred, as demonstrated on the layout shown.

On occasions where left-alignment is not an option, aligning it to a central placement is preferred to the right side.

Adherence to a page margin clear space rule should always be followed. This has been defined as equal to 2x the clear space zone (or 2x the height of 'W' in 'Winchester').

Logo Don’ts

The logo should not be misinterpreted, modified or added to. To the right are examples of what not to do to the logo.

Don’t stretch, distort or modify the proportions of the logo.

Don’t alter the arrangement, spacing or structure of the logo.

Don’t change the colour of the logo.

Don’t use background imagery where the logo becomes illegible.

Don’t add effects or shadows to the logo.

Don’t outline or apply strokes to the logo.

Don’t add any graphics, symbols or illustrations to the logo. This includes colours of our brand.

Don’t apply the white logo to a light background.

Don’t add any straplines or secondary text to the logo.

Colour Palette

Our colour palette is a valuable asset in keeping the brand campaign cohesive and distinct in the higher education market.

Light Purple and Dark Purple are our primary colours. They should make up the majority of our applications, with secondary colours used to:

- Break up sections
- Highlight information or provide an accent colour to add interest
- Draw attention (e.g. a call to action)

Too many colours can be disorientating. Remember to keep applications as simple as possible whilst maintaining the overall goal. Only use one secondary colours within a visible area of a touchpoint.

Type Colour Usage

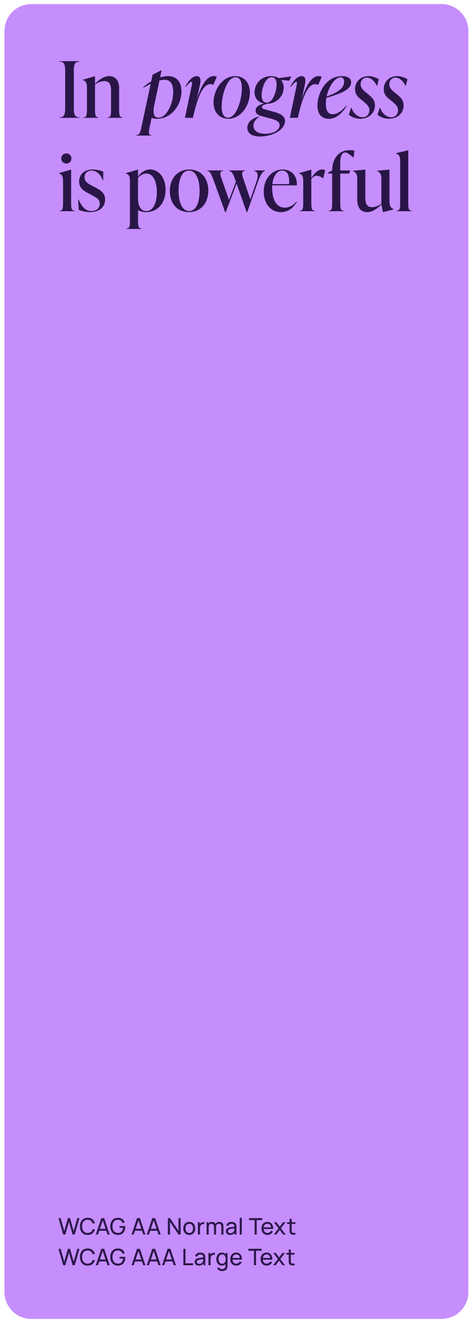

Here are the correct type colour combinations that we can use. When combining our colours in a piece of communication, always try to ensure legibility.

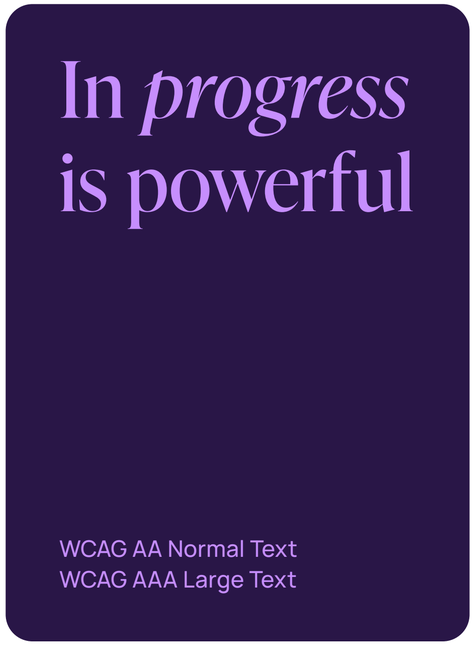

Do not layer bright colours on top of another in a way that would make something difficult to read.

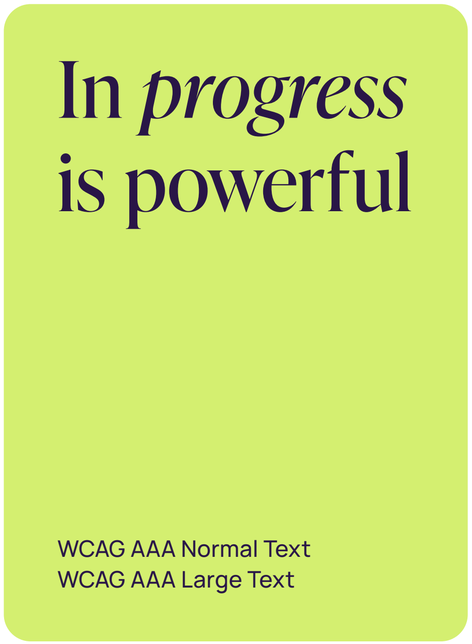

These colour combinations have been selected based on a contrast ratio that meets at least WCAG AA Normal Text, except for white text on an orange background, which does not meet the required contrast ratio. This type colour combination should be used for large text only.

We've outlined the contrast ratios for both normal and large text to the right.

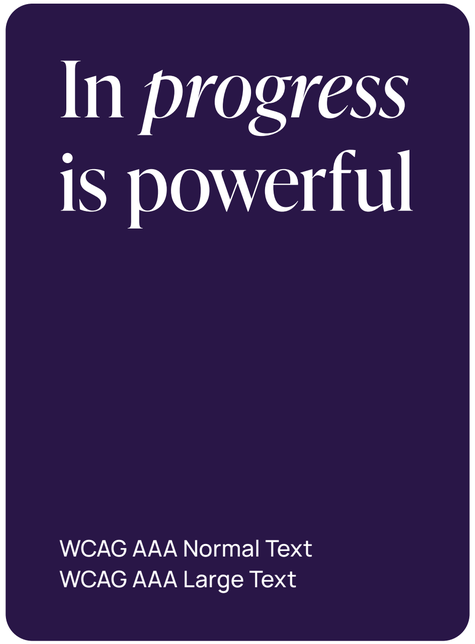

Please avoid creating any other text colour combinations in our communications.

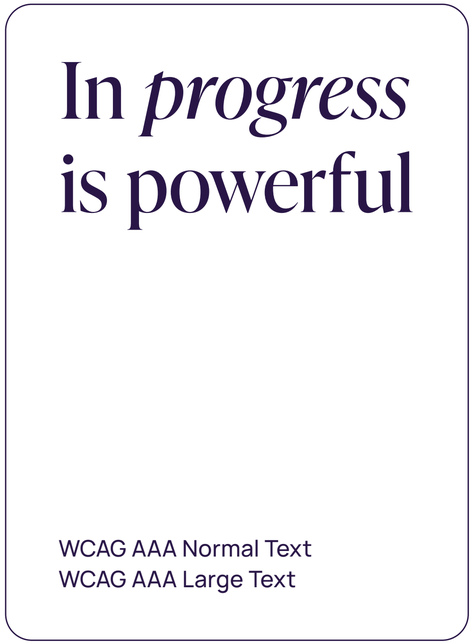

Primary Typeface

We have one typeface we use for all of our headlines, IvyPresto Display Regular.

Featuring a large x-height, thin serifs, hairlines and narrow proportions, the typeface can be a confident storyteller or a refined anchor for all of our communications.

About us

Highlights

We use italics to highlight key words that directly connect the campaign concept ‘In The Making’. This creates a subtle visual cue that ties back to the overarching idea.

For example:

- In the room. In the moment. In the making – making is highlighted because it’s central to the campaign concept.
- A place for learning, and for living – living is highlighted to show the broader experience beyond academics.

Only italicise words that carry conceptual weight or emotional resonance, not everyday descriptive terms.

In the room. In the moment. In the making.

A place for learning, and for living.

Flexible Assets

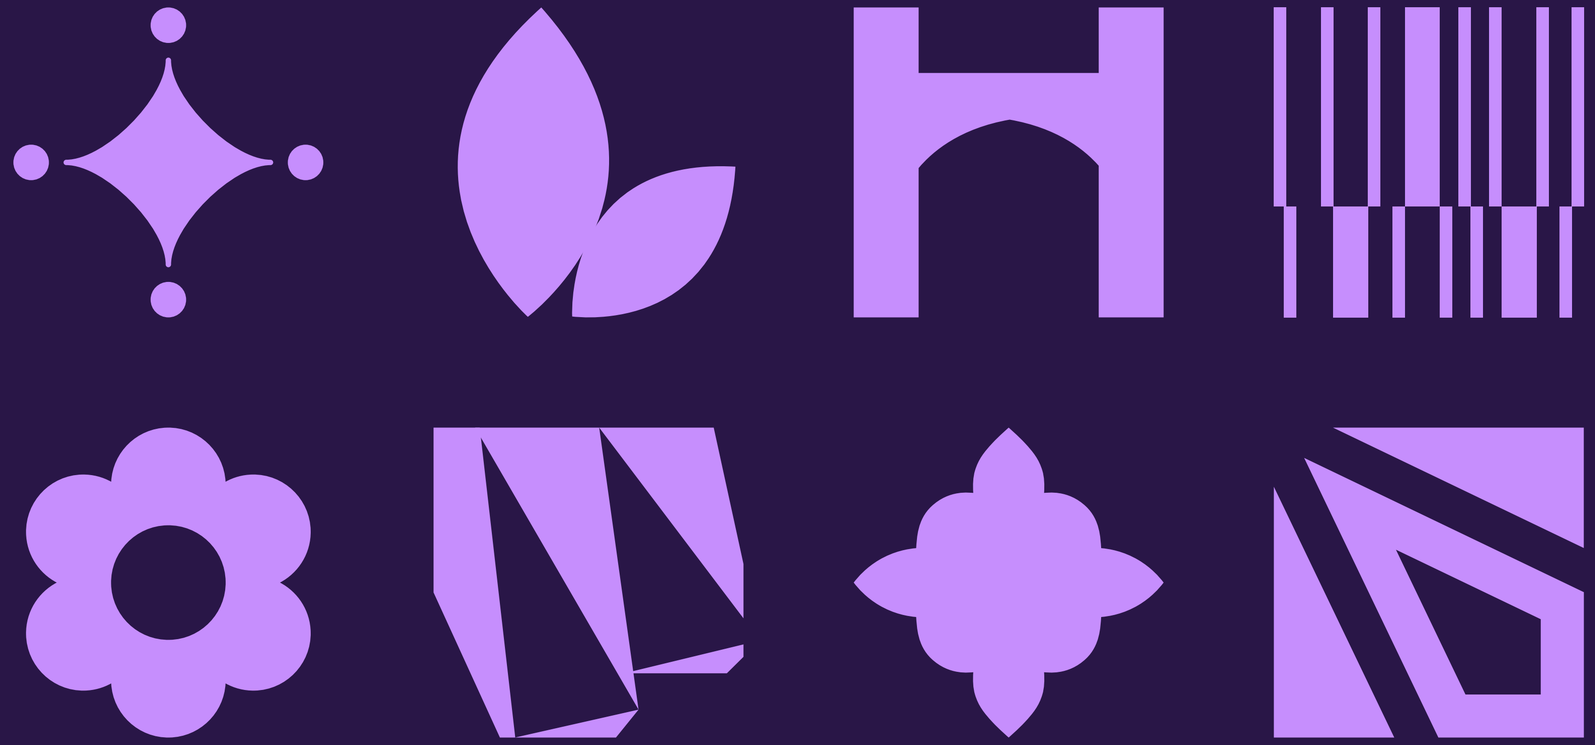

Our flexible assets add energy, clarity and character to the brand campaign. From bespoke motifs to raw photography, these elements work together to create a distinctive visual language. Used consistently, they enhance designs, support storytelling and bring cohesion across every touchpoint.

Our Motifs

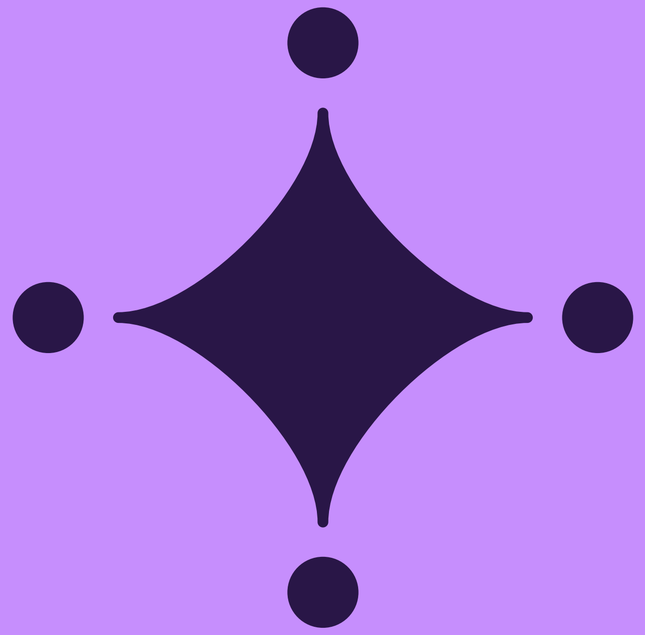

Showcased here is an overview of our bespoke motifs. From city streets to campus corners, every surface holds a shape, a story, a symbol. These motifs reflect a city and a University, always in progress.

These are used to frame messaging and create background patterns. They are particularly useful for framing photography where they help draw focus to the subject. Together, they form a cohesive brand campaign identity.

Star Motif

Our star motif is inspired by the medieval carvings found in the doors around the city, reflecting Winchester's rich historical character and heritage.

Star Motif Best in Practice

The star motif is one of the most frequently used shapes within the brand, owing to its simplicity, dynamism, and flexibility across various assets. It can be applied in multiple ways, including hero image applications, texting framing, image framing and social story frames.

Hero Image Applications

It works especially well in dynamic hero image applications, such as social or video ads, OOH, or presentation slides, where its flowing design creates an eye-catching frame. The organic curves add movement and energy to large-scale visuals, helping key messaging stand out.

Social Story Frames

It is ideal for use on the first frame of a social in-feed carousel or story video, allowing it to bleed into the second frame and create continuity. Here is an example of each way that this motif can be applied creatively across the asset.

Text Framing

It can be used to frame text, adding clarity and focus to key messaging. It works especially well when overlapping the motif to create an interesting patterning graphic for CTA frames and video animations.

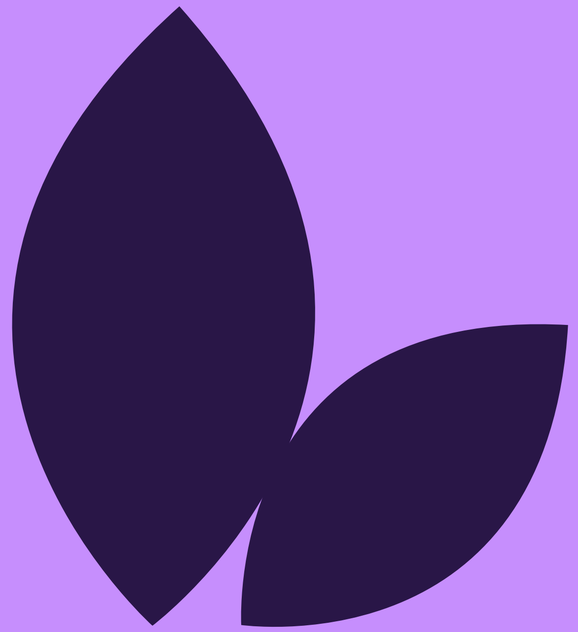

Image Framing

It is effective when placed in the corners to frame full-bleed imagery, adding structure without overwhelming the subject. By allowing the motif to cut behind elements such as a student's head, the framing creates an integrated look and feel.

Greenery Motif

Our greenery motif reflects Winchester's lush green landscapes, celebrating the city's open spaces where students can enjoy the outdoors and connect with nature.

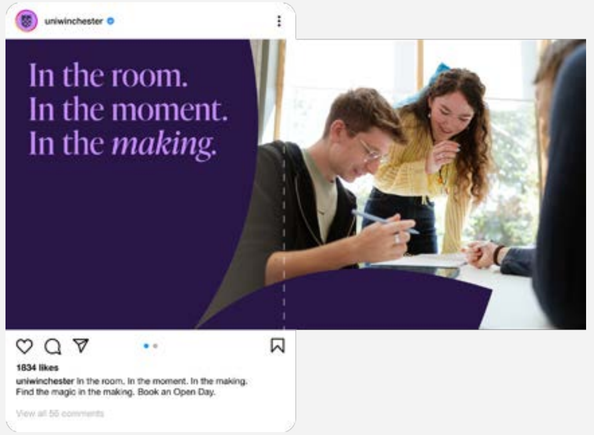

Greenery Motif Best in Practice

This motif has plenty of flexibility across a range of touch points. It is best used for hero image applications, social carousel ads, text framing and image framing.

Hero Image Applications

It works especially well in dynamic hero image applications, such as social or video ads, OOH, or presentation slides, where its flowing design creates an eye-catching frame. The organic curves add movement and energy to large-scale visuals, helping key messages stand out.

Social Carousel Ads

It is ideal for use on the first frame of a social in-feed carousel or story video, allowing it to bleed into the second frame and create continuity. This creates an immersive, integrated look that guides the viewer smoothly through the content.

Text Framing

It can be used to frame text, adding clarity and focus to key messaging. It works especially well for video end cards, CTA frames, and other applications where messaging needs to be simple and immediate.

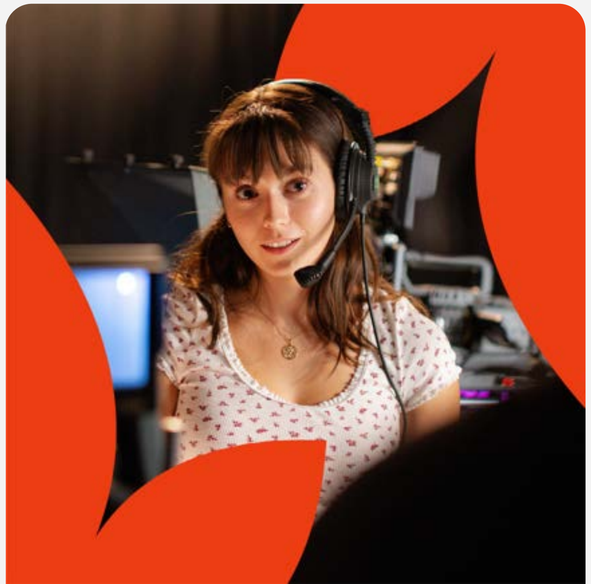

Image Framing

It is effective when placed in the corners to frame full-bleed imagery, adding structure without overwhelming the subject. By allowing the motif to cut behind elements such as a student's head, the framing creates an integrated look and feel.

Greenery Motif Best in Practice

Layered Hero Image Applications

It works especially well in dynamic hero image applications, such as social or video ads, OOH, or presentation slides. It can be used to frame an application, cutting through typography and photography to create a layered and vibrant visual.

Text Framing

It can be used to frame text, adding clarity and focus to key messaging. It works especially well when overlapping the motif to create an interesting patterning graphic for CTA frames and video animations.

Flexible Assets

Archway Motif

Our archway motif, inspired by Winchester's Westgate Arch, celebrates the city's historic architecture and its distinctive character, reflecting Winchester's rich heritage and unique identity.

Archway Motif Best in Practice

The archway, being a more complex shape with two distinct sections, is best utilised solely as a graphic device.

Graphic Motif

It can be incorporated alongside other elements as a graphic motif, creating a visually striking backdrop that complements photography. This application can be extended across campus banners, tote bags, and a variety of Open Day materials.

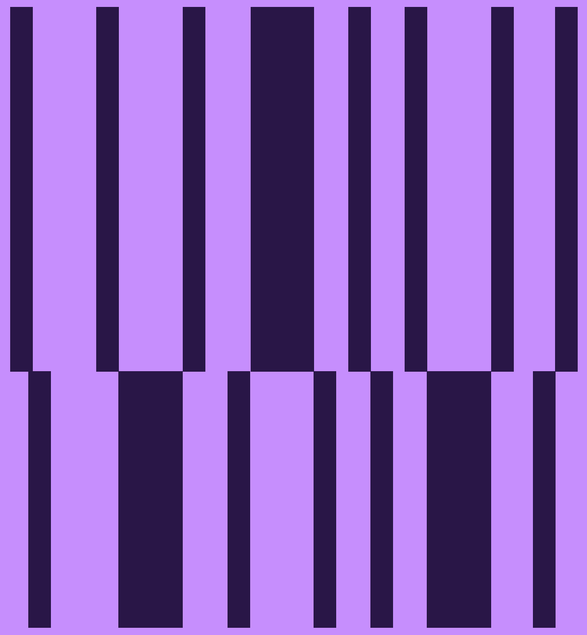

Tiled Backgrounds

It can be used in tiled backgrounds to bring energy and texture to brand campaign visuals. When placed behind cut-out images of students, the pattern creates an expressive and vibrant look that enhances the overall design while keeping the focus on the subject.

Stripes Motif

Our stripes motif, inspired by the textured architecture of West Downs Campus, highlights Winchester's distinctive design and character.

Stripes Motif Best in Practice

Due to its intricacy and smaller surface fill areas, this shape is recommended for use only as a repeated accent graphic or layered over a background to function as a highlight or point of interest.

Accent Graphic

It can be used as a stacked accent graphic to frame our brand campaign photography. To add further texture and depth in an application, we can lay it on top of a cornered motif.

Hero Image Applications

It is ideal for striking hero image applications, such as OOH or video ads, where its bold, geometric design creates an eye-catching frame. It brings energy and structure to large-scale visuals, ensuring key messaging stands out.

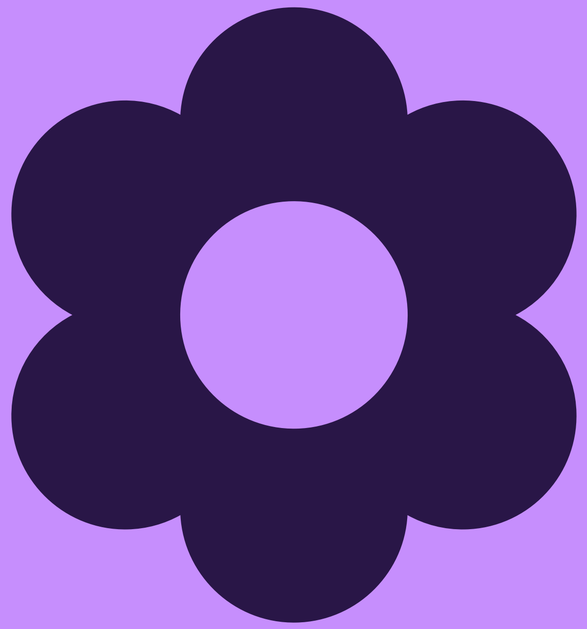

Background Graphic

It can be used as a graphic background to bring energy and texture to brand campaign visuals. When placed behind cut-out images of students, the motif creates an expressive and vibrant look that enhances the overall design while keeping the focus on the subject.

Flower Motif

Our flower motif, inspired by the Great Hall's gold floral symbols, celebrates Winchester's historic gardens and rich heritage.

Flexible Assets

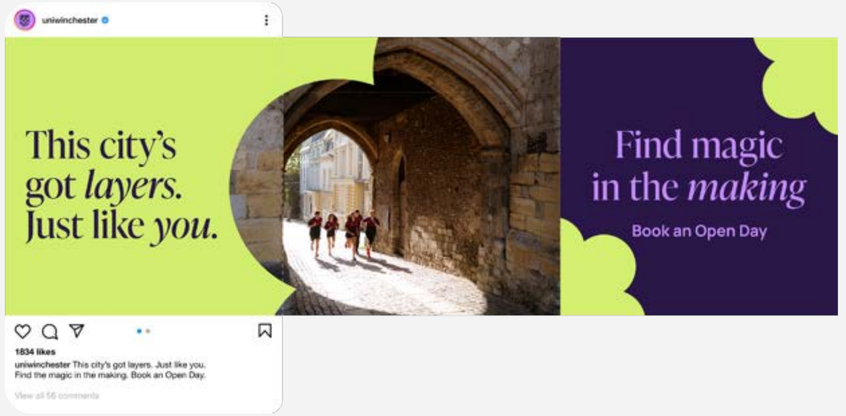

Flower Motif Best in Practice

Similar to the leaf and star motifs, the flower motif, with its large surface area, can be used for hero image applications, social carousel ads and image framing.

Layered Hero Image Applications

It works especially well in dynamic hero image applications, such as social or video ads, OOH, or presentation slides, where its flowing design creates an eye-catching frame. The organic curves add movement and energy to large-scale visuals, helping key messaging stand out.

Social Carousel Ads

It is ideal for use on the first frame of a social in-feed carousel or story video, allowing it to bleed into the second frame and create continuity. This creates an immersive, integrated look that guides the viewer smoothly through the content.

Hero Image Applications

It can be used to house photography in the form of a windowing device. This allows for a simple application which highlights the key messaging within the asset.

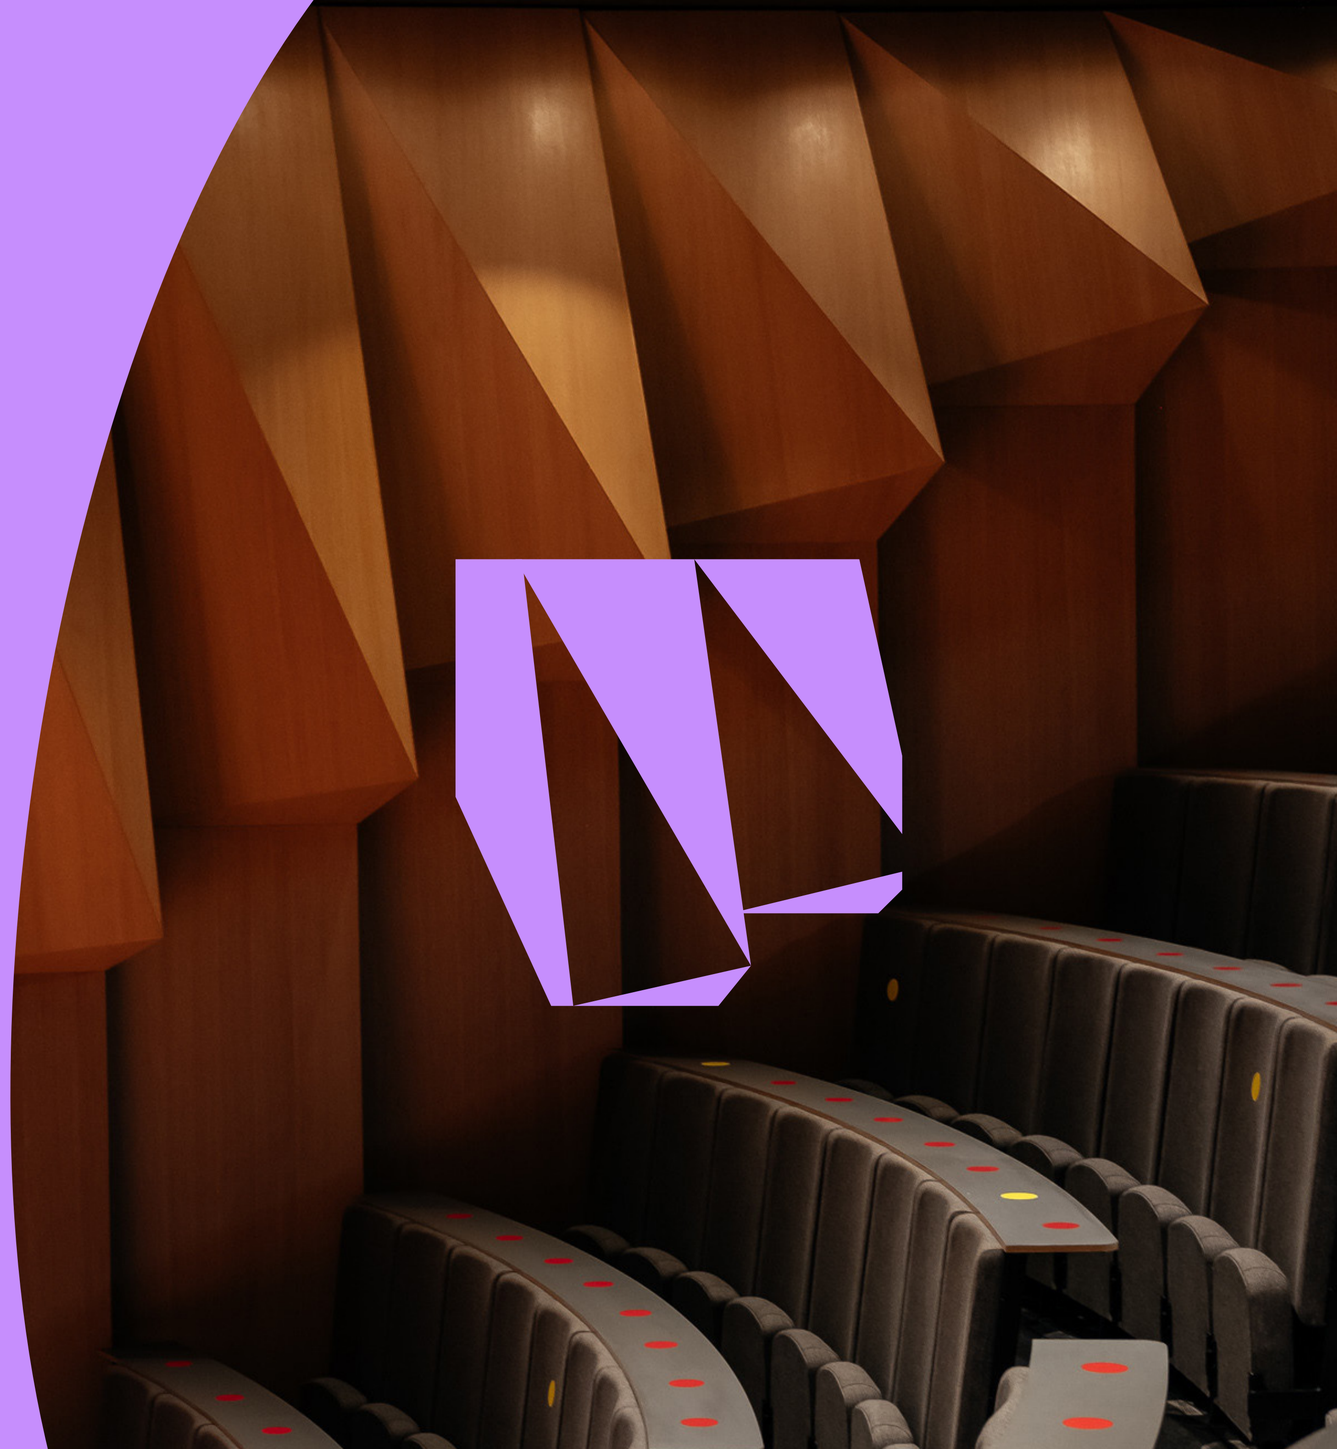

Image Framing

It is effective when placed in the corners to frame full-bleed imagery, adding structure without overwhelming the subject. By allowing the motif to cut behind elements such as a student's head, the framing creates an integrated look and feel.

Lecture Theatre Motif

Our lecture theatre motif, inspired by the angular design of West Downs' auditorium, highlights the campus's distinctive architecture and dynamic learning spaces.

Lecture Theatre Motif Best in Practice

Due to its intricacy, this motif is best used as a background graphic or placed behind a hero student cut-out image. In certain applications, such as a prospectus cover, headline messaging can also be layered on top, provided legibility is maintained.

Hero Image Applications

It is ideal for striking hero image applications, such as video ads or OOH, where its bold, angular design creates an eye-catching frame. It brings energy and structure to large-scale visuals, ensuring key messaging stands out.

Print Applications

It is effective for striking, dynamic print applications, such as a prospectus cover, where its bold design creates strong visual impact. Its angular shapes can be adjusted to anchor key elements, like the logo, ensuring both structure and balance in the layout.

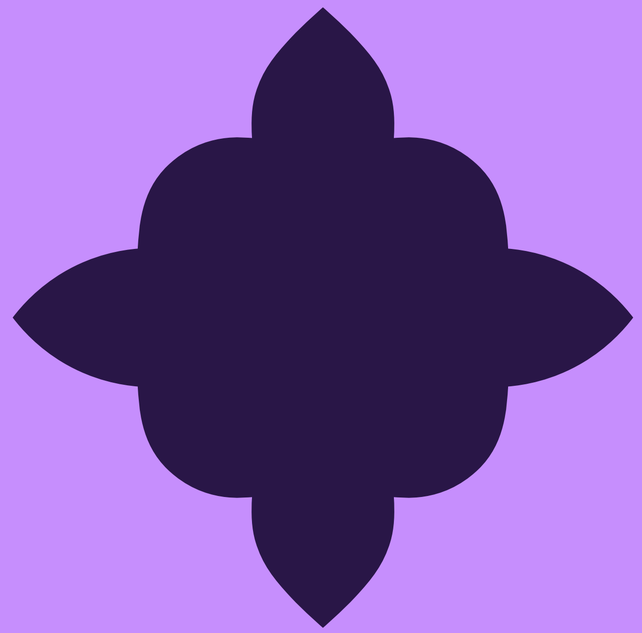

Tiled Backgrounds

It can be used as a graphic background to bring energy and texture to brand campaign visuals. When placed behind cut-out images of students, the motif creates an expressive and vibrant look that enhances the overall design while keeping the focus on the subject.

Chapel Motif

Our chapel motif, inspired by the window of the chapel at King Alfred Campus, celebrates the campus's historic architecture and timeless character.

Chapel Motif Best in Practice

Similar to the leaf and star motifs, the chapel motif, with its large surface area, can be used for hero image applications, tiled backgrounds and text framing. It is frequently used in slide decks as a simple break slide, where the shape adds visual interest.

Hero Image Applications

It works especially well in dynamic hero image applications, such as social or video ads, OOH, or presentation slides, where its flowing design creates an eye-catching frame. You can layer it up to add another colour like the example above, or have it without for more refined look.

Tiled Backgrounds

It can be used as a graphic background to bring energy and texture to brand campaign visuals. When placed behind cut-out images of students, the motif creates an expressive and vibrant look that enhances the overall design while keeping the focus on the subject.

Text Framing

It can be used to frame text, adding clarity and focus to key messaging. It works especially well for video end cards, CTA frames, and other applications where messaging needs to be simple and immediate.

West Downs Motif

Our West Downs motif is inspired by the dynamic roof design from the West Downs campus, capturing its distinctive silhouette. It reinforces the identity of the University.

West Downs Motif Best in Practice

Due to the intricacy of this motif, it should only be used within a tiled background or pattern, alongside the other motifs. It is too detailed to frame key messaging.

Tiled Patterns

It can be used within a tiled pattern, where its intricate detail creates a rich, textured pattern alongside the other motifs. It works especially well as a decorative element, for example running along the edge of a tote bag for a distinctive branded touch.

Tiled Backgrounds

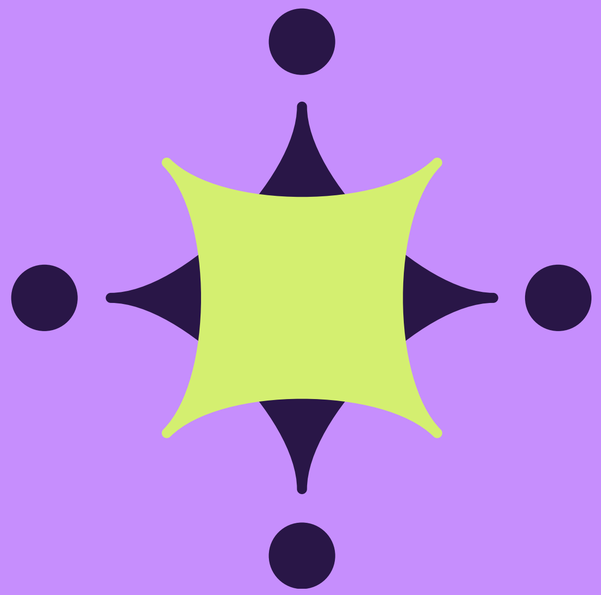

It can be used in tiled backgrounds to bring energy and texture to brand campaign visuals. When placed behind cut-out images of students, the pattern creates an expressive and vibrant look that enhances the overall design while keeping the focus on the subject.

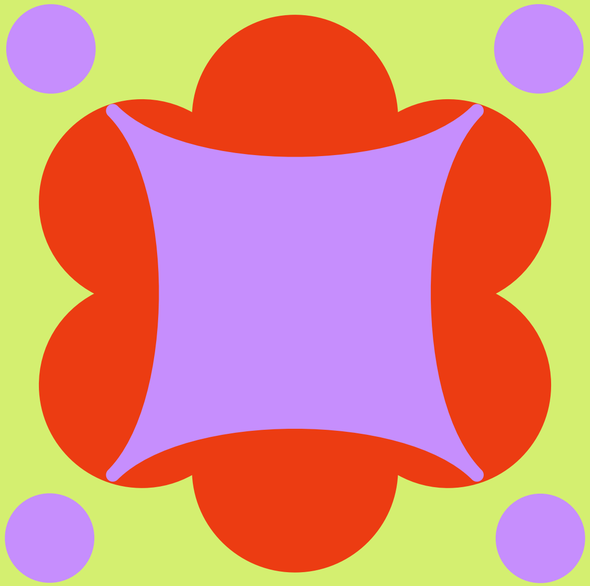

Flexible Assets

Layered Motifs

We have a set of three layered motifs, specifically designed to frame key messaging on end cards and CTA frames. Their primary use is to combine our colour palette and motifs in a visually engaging way that highlights important content.

Layered Motifs Best in Practice

Landscape Video End Card

Layered motifs are used on landscape video end cards to frame key messaging, adding depth and visual interest while highlighting a call to action. Always include the University logo to ensure brand recognition, keeping end cards engaging and consistent with the brand campaign's colours and visual system.

Presentation Title Slide

Layered motifs enhance presentation title slides by framing the title and creating a sense of movement, guiding the viewer's eye and setting an engaging tone for the presentation.

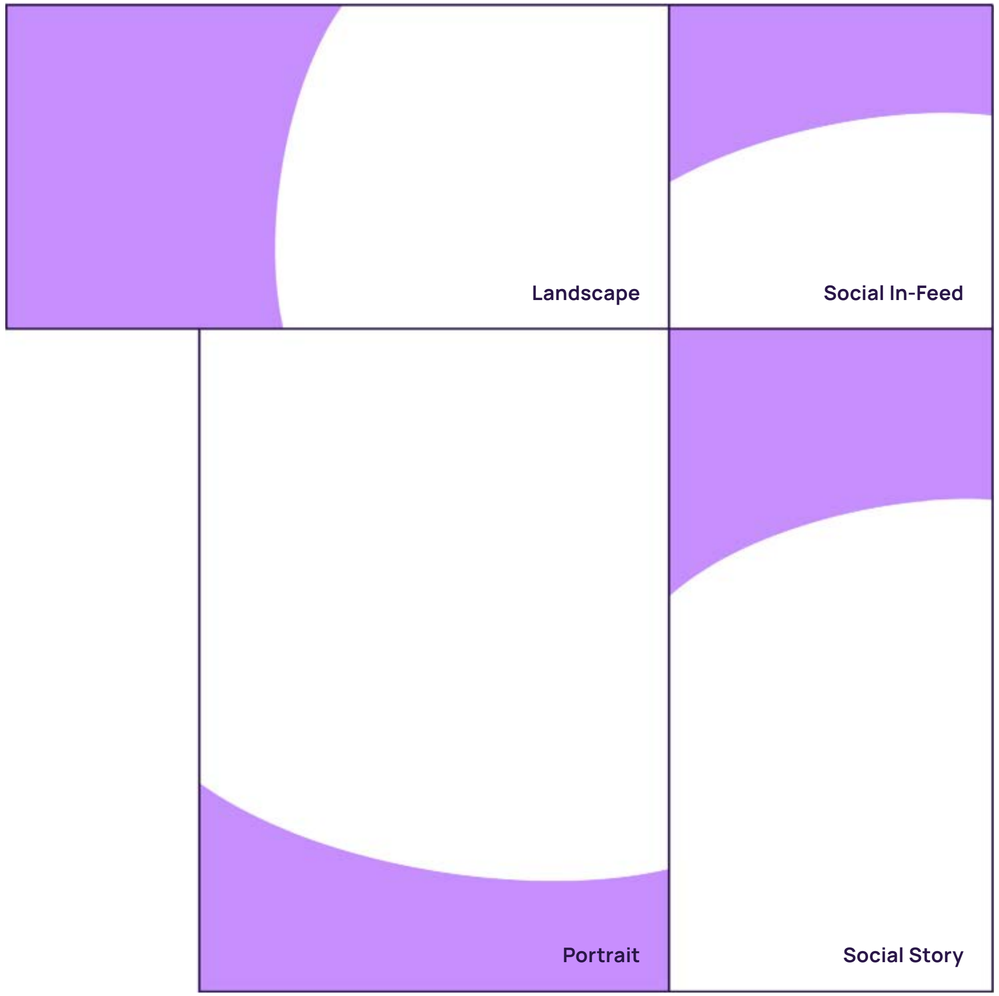

Social CTA End Frame

Layered motifs enhance social CTA end frames, for both in-feed and story formats. The University logo is not required, as it will appear automatically in the social platform's UI.

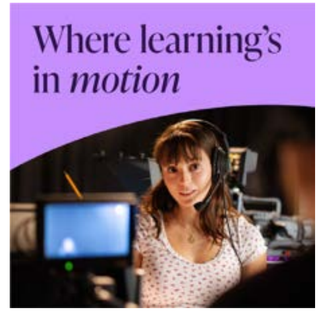

Curved Frame Usage

Within this brand campaign, one of the simplest applications of the motifs is the curved element derived from the star motif.

Shown here are examples of best practices across landscape, portrait, social in-feed and social story formats. Always ensure that photography is appropriately framed, with key details visible and that there is sufficient breathing space for text, CTAs, and logos.

Motifs Don’ts

Our motifs helps us establish a distinct brand campaign identity, but when used incorrectly, they can quickly lose their impact.

Here are a few examples of what not to do.

Don’t stretch, distort or modify the proportions of the motifs. The lecture theatre motif is the only motif that can be modified, see page 39 for the print application example.

Don’t overlay text on both the motif and photography. Keep it legible.

Don’t add effects or shadows to the motifs.

Don’t add the motifs on top of photography.

Don’t overuse one type of motif, there’s a range to choose from to ensure diversity across all applications.

Don’t outline or apply strokes to the motifs.

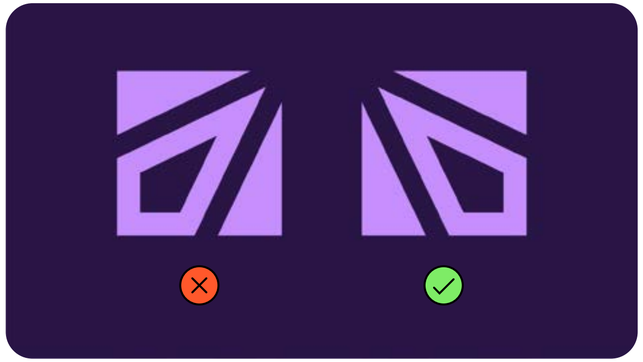

Motifs Don’ts

Our motifs helps us establish a distinct brand campaign identity, but when used incorrectly, they can quickly lose their impact.

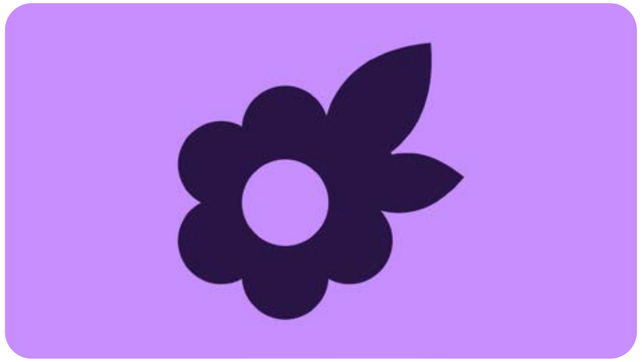

Here are a few examples of what not to do.

Don’t change the colour of the motifs to colours that are not part of the colour palette.

Don’t flip the motifs, unless specifically permitted in the brand campaign toolkit.

Don’t combine or merge the motifs to create new motifs.

Don’t crop the motifs in a way that obscures their recognisable form.

Don’t add any graphics, symbols, patterns or illustrations to the motifs.

Don’t use secondary colours without at least one primary colour.

Our photography represents a new era for the University of Winchester and the different types of students who are in the making. More than just imagery, it's a strategic tool that aligns with our brand – shaping perceptions, fostering connection and communicating our distinctive impact.

Community

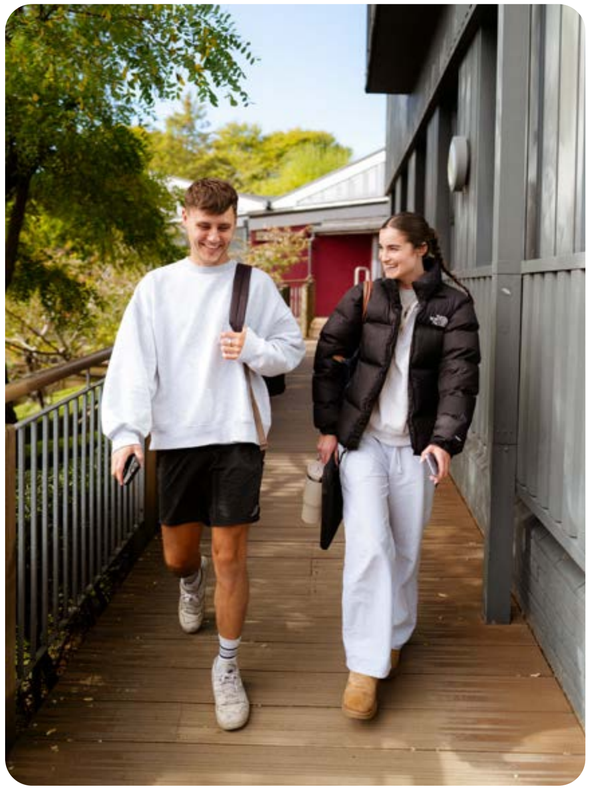

Community and Culture
Group shots should represent a vibrant and proactive student experience. They should capture candid interactions which demonstrate ambition and collaboration.

Look and Feel
Use warm and natural lighting to create a sense of warmth and authenticity. We should capture genuine, unposed moments that reflect authentic experiences and emotions.

Must Haves
Showcase a mix of students to represent the diversity of the university. Always prioritise outdoor shots and consider adequate lighting, avoiding cluttered spaces, and doing more with less.

Place

Place and Surrounds
This photography style should capture Winchester's historic charm and modern energy, showing students engaging with both. Focus on everyday life beyond the classroom such as social spaces and city life. Group shots should feel candid and warm, reflecting friendship, wellbeing, and a strong sense of community.

Look and Feel
Use natural, soft lighting to capture the warmth and character of Winchester's streets and open spaces. Outdoor shots should feel lively, authentic and unposed.

Must Haves
Showcase a mix of students to represent the diversity of the university. Always prioritise outdoor shots and consider framing the student within settings that highlight the surrounds of Winchester.

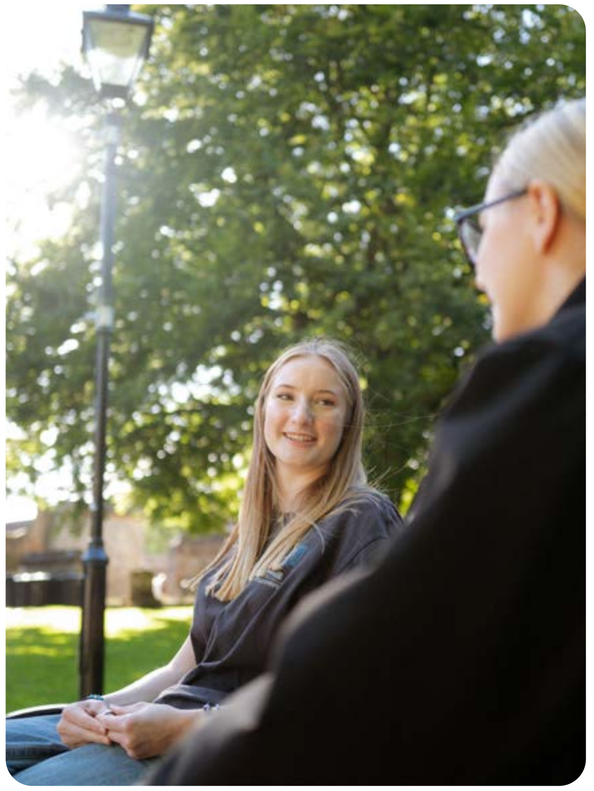

Individuals

The Students
This photography style focuses on students taking ownership of their student journey through portrait style photography. The photography style captures moments of growth, joy, transformation, and the student in the making.

Look and Feel
Use warm and natural lighting to create a sense of warmth and authenticity. We should capture genuine, unposed moments that reflect authentic experiences and emotions.

Must Haves
When taking new portraits, make sure each student has enough space around them and is set against a softly blurred background. A well-chosen backdrop can add interest and help tell the student's story. Always pay attention to lighting, steer clear of overly cluttered interior settings as this will create the strongest images.

Practice

Facilities and Processes
This photography style focuses on the practical disciplines of our students. It should capture the joy of learning, the dynamic nature of various fields and how the facilities are helping our students get ready for the real world.

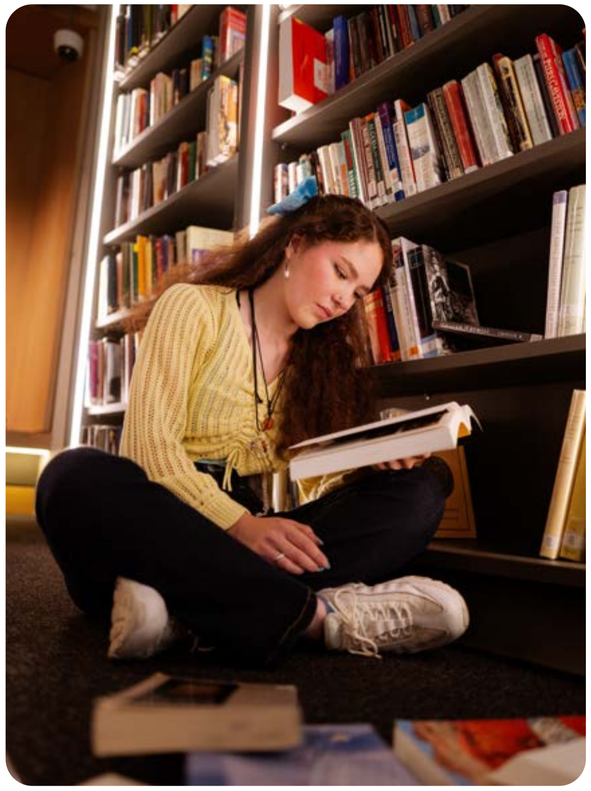

Look and Feel
Harness a range of shooting styles, from using soft focus and feeling like we're in the middle of it, to wide shots that capture the working environment. Imagery should feel editorial and demonstrate action, collaboration and ambition.

Must Haves
Showcase real world applications, skills and knowledge. Look to use softer and cool-toned lighting for tech and nursing focused subjects to communicate a sense of freshness and professionalism. Avoid yellow light and dated interiors. Photography should feel authentic.

Photography Don’ts

These are examples of what not to do with photography.

Following these guidelines will help the University establish an authentic and consistent style and student representation.

Don’t use typical stock imagery styles, photography should feel authentic and natural.

Don’t awkwardly crop imagery. Consider imagery that fits to each frame.

Don’t use imagery that feels overcrowded. Before shoots, de-clutter and clean spaces.

Don’t shoot anyone wearing large graphics or logos, with the exception of the University logo.

Don’t shoot the obvious stagnant shots. Break away from desk shots where you can.

Don’t use imagery featuring inadequate lighting. Inside, look for spaces with clean, modern interiors.

Brand Campaign in Action

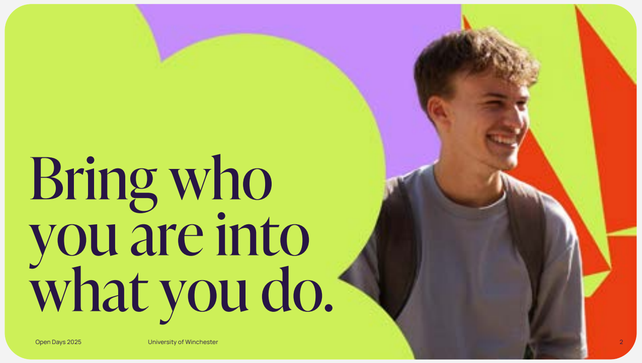

Open Day Presentation

Here is an example of the current Open Day presentation.

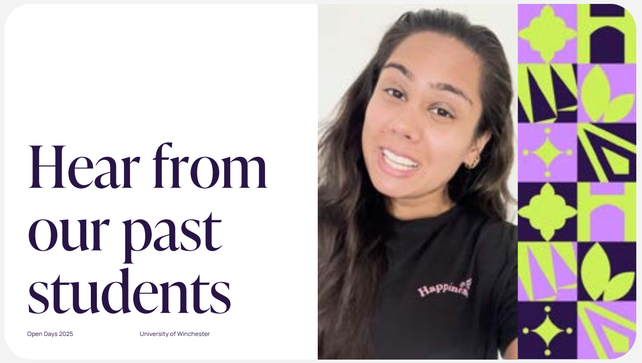

It clearly demonstrates how the fixed and flexible elements can come together to create a presentation that is vibrant, engaging, and yet refined.

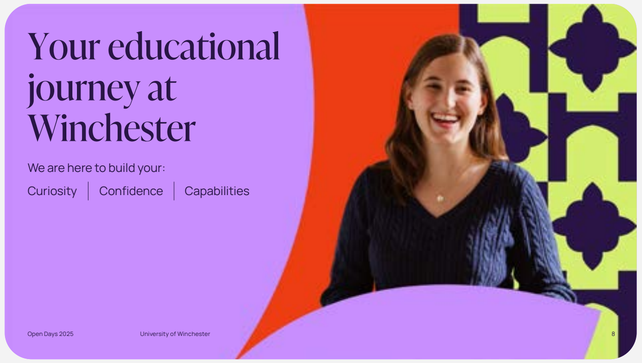

Use this deck as your gold-star reference when creating any further decks or slide shows.

Brochure

Here is an example of how the new creative can come together in a brochure or informational flyer format.

In these contexts, it's important to keep the design simple to ensure the information remains clear and at the forefront. This example also demonstrates how specific motifs can be used as badges to highlight statistics or pull quotes effectively.

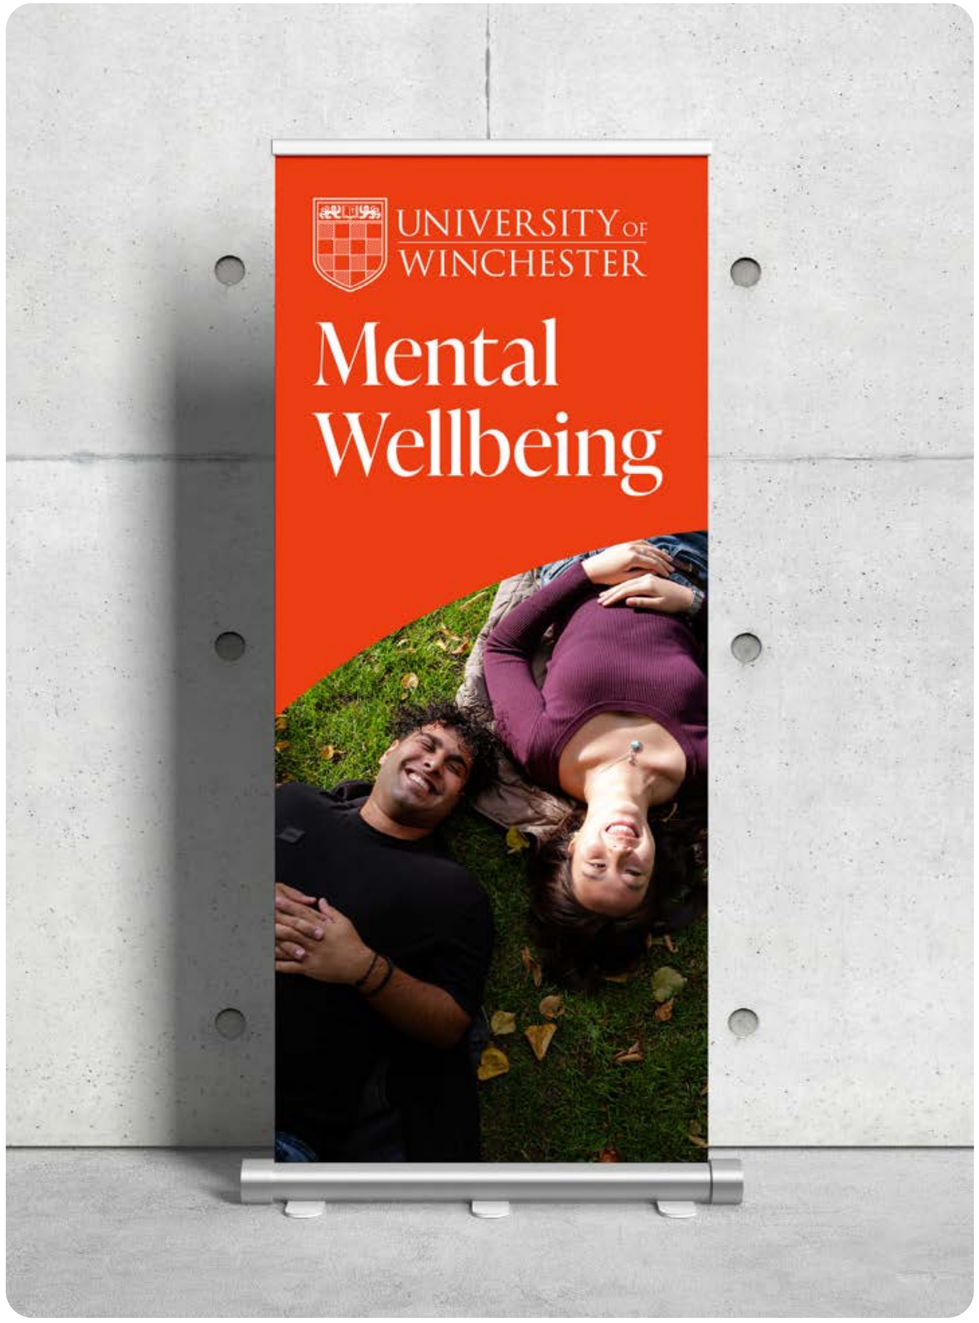

Pull-Up Banners

Here is an example of the Open Day subject pull-up banners.

Given that these are produced in high volumes, the design should remain minimal and straightforward. This ensures efficiency in production while allowing the new photography to be prominently featured as the key visual element.

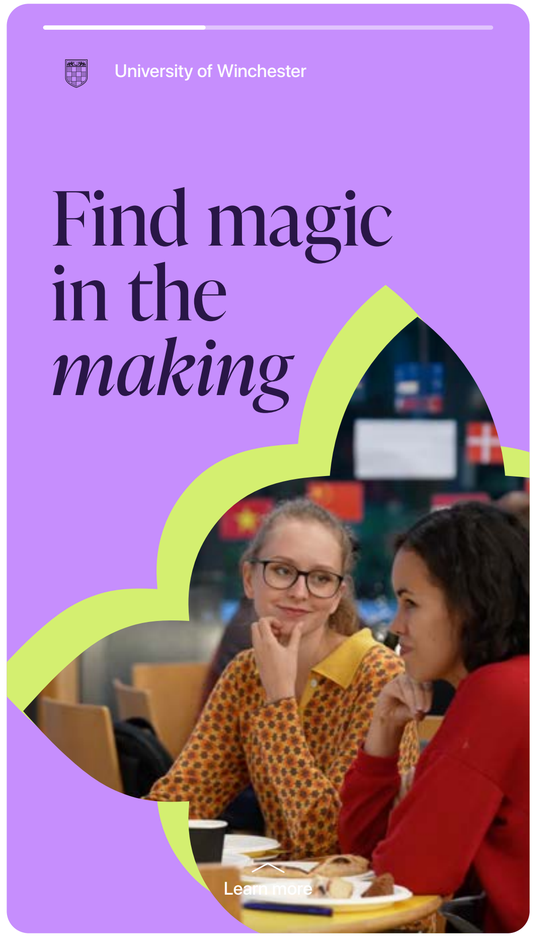

Social Story Ad

Here is an example of how social story ads can be brought to life with motion in mind.

Various motifs can function as dynamic windows for video content, as framing devices that draw attention to key messaging, and as layered graphic elements within the final CTA card.

Use this template as a strong foundation for storytelling, always leading with energy and clarity.

YouTube Pre-Roll Ad

This YouTube pre-roll ad example brings the campaign to life with bold, attention-grabbing visuals and a diverse mix of our motifs, ensuring strong identity and variety throughout.

The modular structure allows it to be easily adapted into 30 or 15 second versions, making it flexible across placements.

Use this template as a strong foundation for storytelling, always leading with energy and clarity.
